About Hazards

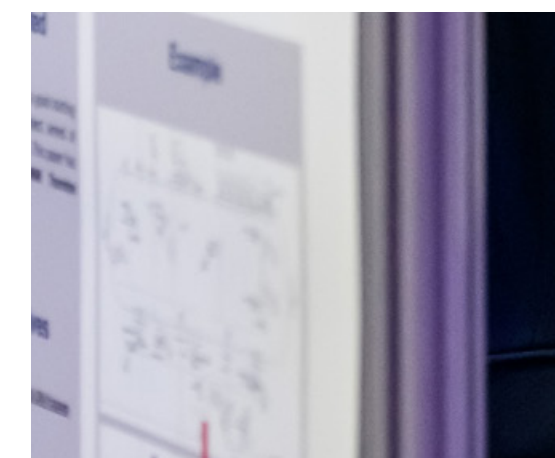

Hazards is widely recognised as one of the world's leading process safety conferences. First staged in 1960, it is an industry-focused event which shares good practice, current thinking and lessons learned in process safety.

Last year, IChemE reinstated Hazards as a face-to-face event following two successful virtual conferences. With paying delegate numbers immediately reverting to pre-pandemic levels, Hazards 33 will be an ideal opportunity for sponsors and exhibitors to re-connect with existing clients and build new networks with other process safety and loss prevention professionals.

Check out www.icheme.org/hazards33 for the latest information about the event.

Why sponsor or exhibit at Hazards?

Sponsoring or exhibiting at Hazards 33 can help you generate new business leads, raise brand awareness, demonstrate your commitment to process safety good practice and/or provide a cost-effective, time-effective way to catch-up with current process safety clients and contacts.

Whatever your aim, we can help.

Here's what the delegate profile looked like at our last face-to-face Hazards conference in 2022.

“ This is where it’s at for process safety. If you’re in to process safety, this is the place to be. ”

Richard Freeman, Engineers

Why come to Hazards 33?

Prime location

The Hazards 33 exhibition hall will be at the heart of the conference. We'll be serving all our food and drink in the exhibition area, ensuring regular footfall. Subject to capacity, we'll also be housing our poster presentations in the same space.

Networking opportunities

Our Hazards 33 welcome drinks reception takes place in the exhibition hall and we offer our exhibitors the chance to serve the drinks from their stands. Exhibitors and sponsors also receive invitations to the conference social event the following night, helping you continue networking with delegates in a less formal setting.

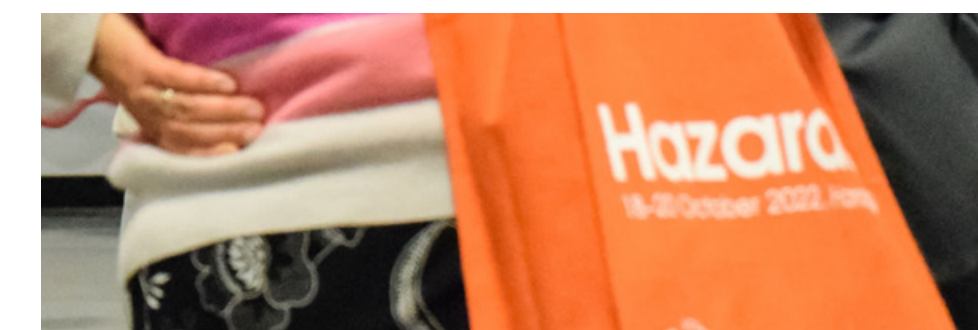

The Birmingham factor

Historically, Birmingham has been IChemE's most popular Hazards conference destination and another bumper crowd is anticipated. The National Conference Centre is just five minutes from Birmingham International Airport and Train Station. With 1,000 free parking spaces on site and 2,000 hotel rooms within five minutes' drive, Hazards 33 is easily accessible from road, rail and air.

DID YOU KNOW....

Every year approximately 1/3 of the delegates at Hazards are new to the event, helping our regular exhibitors and sponsors generate new leads and catch up with established contacts.
